

David Hand House, next to the old Village Hall, photographed by William Wallace Tooker, early 1880s. Courtesy of the John Jermain Memorial Library, Sag Harbor.

Year: Photograph taken in the early 1880s (depicts the historic David Hand House). Tone: Historical and documentary, capturing an important architectural and community landmark. Mood: Nostalgic and reflective, evoking the rural, small-town character of Sag Harbor in the late 19th century. Style: Early photography with a straightforward, unembellished composition, focusing on architectural form and historical context.